ELEVENTH DISTRICT GIVES SENATE TOGA TO ERNST

Cox Carries State By More Than Four Thousand
Majority

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—The possibility of a contest for the seat in the United States senate, which has been captured on the face of the returns by Richard P. Ernst, of Covington, appears remote. Though evidence of fraud in mountain districts appears plentiful, it would probably be a waste of time for the Democratic candidate, Senator J. C. W. Beckham, to contest the election, as his claims would have to be decided by the United States senate, which is now heavily Republican. The chance of a Democratic candidate getting a judicial decision from the Republican senate is illustrated by the case of Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, who has been permitted to retain his seat though convicted by a federal jury of election frauds.

Though three precincts are still unreported Chesley H. Searcy, Republican state campaign chairman, has conceded the state to Gov. Jas. M. Cox. The Association Press gives Cox a lead of 4,007, with the three precincts out. With four out in the senatorial race Ernst has a lead over Beckham of 7,543.

DIED AT 101

Mr. G. B. Likens returned to Washington, D. C., Thursday, after spending about ten days here visiting relatives, attending to some business matters and last but not least for the purpose of voting for Cox, Beckham and Johnson.

ALL NEGROES LOSE

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8.—Notwithstanding the fact that six negroes were nominated upon the Republican ticket in Ohio for membership in the general assembly, not a member of that race will occupy a seat in that body.

Reports from Cleveland and Cincinnati show the defeat of the negro candidates there, while the two negroes named here virtually were buried under an avalanche of negative votes.

In Springfield a negro physician who was nominated to be coroner of Clark county on the Republican ticket also was defeated. So far as is known, not a negro was elected to any office in the state upon any ticket.

MIR. GEORGE G. FAIR SUCCEUMS TO PARALYSIS

—Mr. George Greenup Fair died at his home in Hartford, at 11:15 o'clock Thursday morning, at the age of 84 years, 7 months and 9 days. Mr. Fair suffered a stroke of paralysis sixteen years ago and had been an invalid since that time. He was born in Lincoln County, Ky., but has lived in Hartford during the past thirty years. In early manhood he confessed faith in Christ and united with the Baptist church remaining faithful until his death.

May 24, 1862, he married Miss Isabella Fogle, a sister of Judge J. E. Fogle, and to this union were born two sons, Wm. Montgomery Fair, of Hartford, McDowell Fair of Chattanooga, Tenn.; two daughters, Mrs. Emma Fair Thomas and Mrs. R. R. Riley, both of Hartford.

Funeral services were conducted in the Baptist church at 2:00 o'clock Friday afternoon, by Rev. Russell Walker, after which the remains were interred in Oakwood by the side of his wife, who preceded him to the grave several years ago.

MR. W. F. ACTON DEAD

Mr. William Franklin Acton died at his residence on Clay street, this city, at 4:30 a. m. Thursday, Nov. 4th, after an illness of several weeks. He was born near Sulphur Springs, Ohio County, Ky., Sept. 14, 1853 and was thus slightly past the sixty-seventh milestone. He had been a consistent member of the Methodist church, since 1881.

On March 15, 1880 he was married to Miss Arabelle Wright who died Nov. 2, 1902. The following children of this union survive: Stella Lee, now Mrs. M. T. Likens, of Hartford; Lulu May, now Mrs. R. A. Karraker, of Ottumwa, Iowa; Alonzo Cleveland Acton, of Hartford; Lorenzo Cort Acton, of Hartford, and Ava, now Mrs. J. R. Hoover, of Hartford. There are several grandchildren. On Aug. 21, 1910 he was married to Mrs. Emma White, who survives him and to which union was born William Oren Acton, who also survives.

Funeral services were conducted Friday morning by Rev. T. T. Frazier, after which the remains were interred in the Midkiff cemetery near Sulphur Springs, in the presence of a large congregation of sorrowful friends.

MRS. LYDIA MORTON DEAD

Mrs. Griffin will visit in Kentucky until Christmas but will not be in Hartford until sometime in December.

BIG MAJORITIES CAUSE SURPRISE TO MR. HARDING

Expresses Pleasure Republicans
Will Have Control of Both Houses of Congress

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 5.—Warren G. Harding spent the first day as president-elect resting from the tension of election night and reviewing the late returns, with particular attention to the make-up of the Sixty-seventh congress.

He expressed keen pleasure as the growing figures confirmed the Republican gain in the senate and house for he had told his friends that his greatest apprehension over the outcome had not been the fear of defeat for himself, so much as the realization that as chief executive his hands might be tied by lack of a working party majority in the legislative branch.

His interest through the last weeks of the campaign turned specifically to the senatorial situation and it was known in inside circles of the party that was for the aid of the Republican senatorial candidates more than for any other one cause that he left the front porch and made a swing around the circle of states where the present narrow senate majority was receiving his heaviest attacks.

As for his own fortunes it was said today he never had been in doubt for a moment from the time of his nomination. He did voice surprise at the tremendous majorities piled up for him, declaring the results over-reached his fondest hopes.

The avalanche of congratulatory messages, addressed to president-elect and Mrs. Harding increased in proportions today, many prominent Democrats being numbered among those who sent good wishes. The defeated Democratic candidate, Governor Cox, sent a brief message accepting the result and the senator in a still briefer message, thanked him.

Now that the political complexion of the administration is known definitely, which apparently is without sanction or authority, the names oftenest heard include those of Elihu Root, Philander C. Knox, Henry Cabot Lodge, Charles Evans Hughes, Herbert Hoover, Major General Leonard Wood, Gov. Frank Lowden, former Senator John W. Weeks and Harry M. Daugherty.

CONGRATULATIONS SENT

To Senator Harding By Gov. Cox, Defeated Opponent

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Governor Cox, the defeated presidential candidate, today wired his congratulations to Senator Harding, the president-elect, pledging support "as a citizen, of the executive authority in whatever emergency might arise."

His message, the first act of the defeated candidate today, read: "In the spirit of America, I accept the decision of the majority, tender, as the defeated candidate, my congratulations and pledge as a citizen my support to the executive authority in whatever emergency might arise."

From early last night the governor had no illusion about the final result, but he refused to make any statement. His newspaper extra announcing a "Republican landslide; Harding wins," was said by him to be a "purely impersonal" expression, but once that it was in the street he manifested little interest in the accumulating returns.

The governor proved a good loser, and the last hour spent at his office was devoted to comforting disconsolate callers. He never lost his smile, or did Mrs. Cox, who spent the evening with him. To all friends, who came with condolence he added these words to his smile: "I'm proud of your interest." Apparently, he made good his campaign assertion that for him the result was immaterial.

Before midnight his thoughts turned to his coming vacation. Once, when talking over the long distance telephone connecting his office with the national headquarters at New York, he informed Senator Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the Democratic Speakers' bureau during the campaign, that he was ready at any time to go on

"These children go flocking to the dance halls, where they are destroyed, because they have no adequate home arrangement and nowhere else to go."

BLACKS ATTACK LOUISVILLE TIMES NEWSBOYS

Angered By Headline, "Cox Leads in State," Negroes
Beat Youth Insensible

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 3.—Angered by the shouting of the headline "Cox Leads in State" in The Louisville Times' 8 o'clock extra, three negroes grabbed the papers Gerald McCarthy was selling, beat and kicked him and left him unconscious on the sidewalk at Twelfth and Walnut Streets at 9:30 o'clock last night.

The attack was witnessed by persons in a passing trolley car, but the negroes fled before assistance could be given.

McCarthy, 18 years old, was removed to his home, 3226 West Chestnut Street, suffering from severe scalp wounds, bruises and probable internal injuries.

The police investigated the assault but made no arrests. McCarthy is a shipping clerk. Several instances in which copies of the same Times extra were taken from newsboys by negroes were reported during the evening.

"INSIDE FARM DOPE"

A COLUMN FOR OHIO COUNTY FARMERS SUPPLIED BY EXTRACTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE DEAN OF AGRICULTURE AND YOUR COUNTY AGENT—ASK YOUR COUNTY AGENT

"The College of Agriculture of the Ohio State University believes in organization and co-operation in its broad sense as an effective means of accomplishing many things which would not be easily achieved by individual effort. For this reason, the College of Agriculture is active in assisting in organization work, both in the matter of farm bureaus and in the case of pure seed, livestock, social and other organizations. The fact that some of these organizations may at some time in their history assume an attitude or carry out a line of action which later proves to have been unwise is no matter for serious concern to the College of Agriculture. Every good principle has its limitations and exceptions. The fact that some organization somewhere does a wrong thing is far from proof that agricultural organizations in general are not very useful or even essential factors in our progress. It should, therefore, be distinctly understood in the beginning that while the College of Agriculture believes in the possibilities of the county farm bureaus and has helped with their organization just as it believes in the possibilities of the county farm bureaus and has helped in a modest way toward their organization, it admits no responsibility for the actions of either."

An extract from an address by Clark S. Wheeler, who was director of Extension Ohio State University. This address was delivered before the Farm Bureau Conference, February 1919.

Horticulture
Sending apples and other fruits for identification

The department welcomes the opportunity to serve fruit growers in this way but it is often made a difficult task because the specimens sent in are so few and so imperfect or otherwise abnormal.

Please advise your people to observe the following suggestions as far as possible.

1. Send five or six specimens of a variety when possible selecting those which represent the usual range of size, color and form of the variety, taken from different parts of the tree.

2. Injuries due to diseases, insects or careless handling often destroy or hide peculiarities needed for identification. Avoid them when you can.

3. See that stems are not broken and that the leafy calyx at blossom end is not destroyed.

4. Wrap in old newspapers with a slip of paper bearing a separate number for each variety, when two or more kinds are packed together.

5. Pack with plenty of paper to avoid bruising, write the sender's name on outside of package, and address to the Department of Horticulture, College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky.

6. Send by same mail a letter giving any available information as to character of soil, age of tree, where purchased, local name, if any, etc.

Home Economics

It seems wise at this time to make some changes in the arrangement and subject matter of the clothing projects, and also to add one new project. These projects will be designated by the following names: Beginning, Elementary and Advanced Sewing and Home Crafts. This material will appear in mimeographed form soon, but will later, with additional illustrations be printed in bulletin form.

It is the purpose of this work to better qualify the girl to clothe herself in a neat, economical but attractive way; and also to prepare her to assist in clothing the family. It is our desire to create an appreciation of well made garments and to stimulate the girl's pride so she will always appear neatly and modestly dressed.

A series of outlines for girls' club work in food projects is being planned, and as soon as completed will be sent out to the clubs. They will be mimeographed for the present, but will probably appear later in bulletin form. Three courses of eighteen lessons each will be issued at this time and a fourth will be gotten out later. Meal serving is the underlying idea of these plans, and through simple but attractive serving of the foods and suitable combinations are considered, thus presenting the subject, to some extent at least, from the same point of view as that of the home. In connection with the first course, three simple meals will be served, either breakfasts or suppers. A supper and two dinners will be prepared in the second course, and in the third a dinner and school picnic lunches. Beside giving recipes, the outlines will contain facts about foods and cooking which it is valuable for the home-maker to know such as the value of food to the body, the effect of heat on substances which they contain, etc.

For the help of club leaders additional suggestions concerning the presentation of the lessons with further reference to sources of information will be sent from time to time, probably in form of monthly letters. It is hoped that the agents and leaders will send any suggestions and criticisms of the outlines which develop from their use, and thus help to make them of greater value for all.

There is a new book off the press entitled "Clothing," Choice, Care, Cost. Miss Mary Schencks Woolman is the author and it is published by J. B. Lippincott Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

This book has been reviewed by Miss Maybelle Cornell, of the Home Economics Department, and it is recommended as a book that will be especially helpful to all Home Demonstration Agents as well as teachers and general consumers.

FARM FIRE PROTECTION

The problem of adequate fire protection for rural communities is one that is attracting considerable attention. When it is realized that our annual fire loss is now over $300,000,000 it can be seen very readily that such a tremendous loss represents a serious drain on our resources. Raw and finished material, and food stuffs all go to swell the total, and bear in mind that an article burned is lost forever, there is no exchange, no pay which represents an equivalent. The insurance offsets? Insurance is only a tax that you pay to help replace your neighbor's loss. Our premium is determined by the probability of a fire in the type of building that you own, and by the neighborhood in which you live.

According to the Tennessee Fire Prevention Bulletin, during the year 1919 in that state 92 per cent of the farm dwelling houses in which fire started were lost. In the cities and towns the loss was 57 per cent. The reason for the almost complete loss in the country fire is the fact that little or no protection is available.

The State of California with its vast timber and grain tracts and its dry season, has made a determined effort to reduce its fire losses. Laws have been passed to try and prevent the sources of many fires and a rigid control is exercised over brush fires, camp fires, traction engines, and other common causes of fires. The State Board of Forestry has arranged so that the county will furnish financial assistance to any community which will organize a fire fighting company. The local leader of the company is made a deputy fire warden and is under bonds for the safe keeping of whatever apparatus is provided.

Where an organization of this sort has been in operation the results have proved the worth. One rural company, at Arbuckle, Cal., estimates that it has saved $150,000 worth of grain this summer. In one instance three miles of fire was extinguished in thirty minutes. Another company not only succeeded in extinguishing grain fires but on one occasion saved town property valued at $60,000. Chemical apparatus mounted on auto chassis seems to provide the most satisfactory type of apparatus. Often trailers are attached which carry a miscellaneous assortment of equipment. One trailer was provided with twelve compartments, ten for hand extinguishers, and two for recharges, five divisions for ten-gallon milk cans in which water was carried to recharge the extinguishers; six wire brooms, six shovels, six hoses, one pick, one axe, one pair of heavy wire cutters, and twenty gunny sacks. There are also five three-gallon buckets and one bucket with a funnel in the bottom for refilling extinguishers. The whole outfit will provide equipment for about twenty-eight men. Of course where the fire hazard varies the equipment can be modified to suit the conditions.

In connection with the successful use of fire apparatus in the country the telephone has been found to be a most valuable ally and in communities where a fire company exists every farmer is urged to install a phone. This facilitates, giving an alarm and makes it easy to summon help. In addition of course the telephone is available for the every day routine of farm life and often saves many a mile of useless travel.

Supplementing the community fire company it is possible for the farmer at a reasonable cost to provide himself with a fire extinguisher or two, or even his own chemical engine. He then has his own fire protection instantly available. The soda and acid type of fire extinguishers or chemical engines is recommended for fires in free burning materials such as wood or hay. It is the ideal type of extinguisher for farm protection because it is easy to handle, devoid of any complicated mechanical features, and effective in action. The powerful stream under pressure can be directed accurately toward any spot and the solution is forty times as effective as water alone. Records of the Fire Extinguisher Exchange, which cover 40,000 fire extinguishers, show that among the concerns protected in no single instance where a fire occurred did an extinguisher fail to operate, and no serious loss occurred in any property from a fire which started at a time when employees were on duty. If fire protection can accomplish this in industry it is fair to assume that it can on the farm.

Every fire hazard about the farm should be eliminated or watched constantly. Fire prevention should be a topic of discussion in the home and the children should be taught the danger of fire and what prevention means.

Fire prevention on the farm means the saving of millions in property, and more in life.

THE 1920 INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION

In the trail of a great industry an event of supreme importance will develop at Chicago the first week of December. It is the twenty-first anniversary of the International Live Stock Exposition and will be staged this year on an unprecedented scale, both as concerns numbers and merit. North America at the conclusion of the European war was in possession of a good and abundant stock of incalculable value and the upstartdom of this national possession will be displayed at Chicago this year. In view of impending meat scarcity, the problem of replenishing the national labor is of more importance than ever at this juncture.

Live stock in common with other industries has passed through a period of deflation and readjustment. The new basis of production cost interest is believing and will accentuate as the fact becomes apparent that within the next five years there will not be enough beef pork or mutton produced in the United States to maintain pre-war consumption.

Profit in live stock production hereafter will depend on quality. The function of the "International" is improvement of the herds and flocks of the country—a task to which the agrarian interest must now address itself vigorously. On this account the 1920 display possesses more than usual interest, concerning not only products but consumers.

As a spectacle of animal life this year's "International" will exceed in scope and magnificence all former efforts in the show ring on this continent or Europe.

More closely associated than ever before are live stock and grain production problems; hence this year's corn show, made possible by a liberal donation from the Chicago Board of Trade, will be staged on a more extensive scale than last year. Corn makes live stock raising possible; without live stock "King Corn" would be minus a stout prop.

Every up-to-date farmer should attend the 1920 International Live Stock Exposition at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, November 27 to December 4th.

Millions for a New Stomach

One of the greatest American millionaires said to his physician, "A million dollars, Doctor, spot cash and no grumbling, for a new stomach," and then the sick man groaned and turned away. All his wealth could not make him happy or contented, for happiness largely depends upon digestion. Without health where does happiness come in? After all the stomach plays a great part in everyday life. Without a healthy stomach and good digestion our blood is thin, watery and poor, our heart action is weak, our liver does not do its duty, and man is miserable and unhappy. Prevent disease by putting the house in order and strengthening the system against the germs of disease.

Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., years ago understood diseases and their prevention, and he discovered certain roots and herbs which were nature's remedies, and succeeded in putting them up in a form that could be easily procured at the drug store (liquid or tablets). This he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This Discovery gives no false stimulation because it contains no alcohol or any narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. It gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. For over fifty years it has enjoyed the confidence of the American public. Try it now!

BIRTHDAY GIFT GIVEN SENATOR HARDING President-Elect Born On Farm In Ohio Nov. 2, 1865, Has Double Celebration

Washington, Nov. 2.—The great American electorate made a birthday present of the greatest honor in the gift of the people of the United States to Senator Warren G. Harding. While watching the returns which told of his election to the Presidency, Mr. Harding today was celebrating his fifty-fifth birthday.

He was born November 2, 1865, on his grandfather's farm in the village of Blooming Grove, Morrow County, Ohio.

The President-elect's father is Dr. George T. Harding, who at the time of birth of his son was the village doctor.

Mr. Harding attended the Republican convention of 1916 as temporary chairman and keynote speaker. At that time he was mentioned as a Presidential possibility, but disowned any desire for the nomination. In Chicago last June he was again regarded as a dark horse. Although a receptive candidate, and his chances did not begin to brighten until Gov. Frank O. Lowden, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood and the other leading contenders deadlocked.

In 1891 Mr. Harding married Miss Florence Kling, daughter of Amos Kling, one of the leading business men of Marion. Both are simple and unaffected in their associations and tastes and their home life has been most happy. They are entertaining hosts.

Edited School Paper
Warren G. Harding spent the first fourteen years of his life on the farm where he was born, and this period of his career was much like those of other country boys of the time. He aided in harvesting the crops and learned to do all the various jobs of farm life. In the period when very little of it was accomplished with the aid of machinery. As a boy he was fond of outdoor sports and was usually a member of the "gang" that first waded into the old swimming-hole in Whetstone Creek during the early spring.

After attending the village school until he was 14 years old, Warren Harding entered the Ohio Central College of Iberia, where he made a good record with his studies and was graduated. During his college course he became editor of the school paper, where he first displayed a "nose for news." Following his graduation, he taught district school for a while and played a horn in the village band.

Acquires Marion Star
When Warren was nineteen, Dr. Harding and his family removed to Marion, the county seat of the county of that name. There the Hardings have remained ever since. Dr. Harding, despite his 76 years, still being in active practice of his profession, having watched the growth of his home community from a country town of 4,000 to a bustling industrial community of 30,000 people.

Warren Harding tried two other pursuits before he decided upon a newspaper career. He studied law for a while, and then, because it liked him to have to go to his father every time he needed spending money, he began selling insurance. It was while engaged in the latter work that young Harding first became interested in the Marion Star, then a struggling daily and apparently more of a liability than an asset.

Dr. Harding, having faith in his son's ability to succeed if given an opportunity to follow his inclinations, lent his credit to assist in taking the plant over—the consideration being the assumption of its indebtedness.

Makes Paper Thrive
The county was Democratic, and this paper was not even the official organ of the minority party. The story of how Warren Harding devoted his youthful enthusiasm to the Marion Star, finally transforming it from a state of bankruptcy to the leading paper of the community and taking over its ancient competitor, cannot be given in detail here.

After gathering and writing the news and soliciting and turning in the copy for the ads he had procured, Harding then busied himself on the makeup, worked at turning or feeding the wobbly old small-cylinder Fairhaven press, and after the paper was off, distributed copies to the carrier boys. Then he and his assistant unlocked the forms and distributed the type in order that they might have use of it the next day for they had only 200 pounds of type in the shop sufficient to say that in 1898, fourteen years after his purchase of the little five-column folio daily, a full-leased telegraphic service was installed, and the paper has grown steadily from that time.

From the business of publishing a newspaper, Mr. Harding, as many other publishers have done, took to politics. State Senator, Lieutenant Governor, United States Senator—and after next March 4, President of the United States—outlines his political career.

Future Is Foretold
In the second political speech of his life Mr. Harding won the prediction that he would be a future occupant of the White House. One old Lincoln Republican was so affected by the young man that he rushed up to Harding after he had completed his speech and declared: "Keep it up, young man, and some of these days you will be President of the United States!"

Mr. Harding first held public office in 1889, when he was elected a member of the State Senate from the Thirteenth District. In 1903 he was elected Lieutenant Governor of Ohio, completing his term in this office in 1905.

In 1910 Mr. Harding met his first political defeat. He was the Republican nominee for Governor, but was decisively defeated by Judson Harmon for that office. In the Republican National Convention two years later he nominated President Taft and the Old Guard in that hit-White House, and supported Mr. Taft and the Old Guard in that bitter factional controversy which resulted in Theodore Roosevelt becoming the Progressive candidate and splitting the Republican party to such an extent as to assure the election of the Democratic candidate.

Defeats Foraker for Senate
Two years later Mr. Harding was nominated by the Republicans for United States Senator, defeating former Senator Foraker, with whom he was and remained on the best terms of personal friendship. In the election which followed Mr. Harding won by a plurality of 102,373 being the first Senator elected in Ohio after the constitutional amendment providing for direct election of Senators went into effect.

It is interesting to note that in the same election Gov. James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential nominee this year, then running for reelection to the Ohio governorship, was defeated by Frank B. Willis, who had a plurality of 31,258.

THINKING

If you think you're beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you'd like to win, but you think you can't
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out in the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will;
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to think big, to rise;
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.

Life's battle don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the one who thinks he can.
—Northright.

Democratic automobile owners should be given credit for their noble work in assisting voters to the polls election day. There were very few in the county who did not offer their services.

One of the fine qualities of the American people is the fact that no matter how hard the fight in a political campaign and no matter how strong the language used, the day after the election we resume our duties as citizens, lay all animosities aside and abide by the result as indicated by the vote of the majority.

"Change" seems to be the watchword. Last year we made a "change in the state; this year a "change in the nation. It is our opinion that a great many of the reasons offered for these changes were more fancied than real, but the reasons for the "change" that will occur in our next county election can and will be presented in facts and figures, and the landslide in this county next fall will be even greater in comparison to the territory involved than either of the ones mentioned above.

Our neighbor county, Davless, came back into her own Nov. 2, giving Senator Beckham a majority of 2123 and the Democratic electors a majority almost as great.
The Owensboro Messenger says "It is now doubtful if there will be a Republican entry for any of the county offices. Circuit Judge R. W.
Slack and Commonwealths Attorney Cland Smith may stand for re-election but the returns of last Tuesday showed that McLean and Davless counties will be able to roll up Democratic majorities that will overcome anything that can be produced in Ohio and Hancock counties."

Like many others we have never had much faith in straw votes knowing that those conducting such votes might easily make them conform to their own opinion, but during the recent campaign the Rexall drug stores conducted a vote that indicated almost accurately what the result would show on election day. These stores are scattered throughout the entire United States. Ballot boxes were placed in every one of these and the results reported every week at first and later every day to state and national headquarters of the firm. Their final report on the eve of the election showed that Harding would receive 379 and Cox 152 electoral votes. According to latest election returns Harding received 404 and Cox 127 electoral votes. The only three states the straw vote failed to indicate correctly were Tennessee, New Mexico and Oklahoma. A total of 1,239, 680 votes were cast in the Rexall poll.

The official count of the vote in Ohio county gives Harding a majority of 1360, Ernst 1348 and Hus-well 1343. This is the largest Republican majority ever given by Ohio county, but should not be discouraging to Democrats when conditions are considered. This was a Republican year. The nation has given Harding a majority of probably six million votes. In 1916 when Wilson received a safe majority the county gave a Republican majority of 563 and in 1919, Morrow received a majority of 1008, so this year when the Republicans had oodles of money and with the nation giving a Republican landslide and with the newly franchised women almost doubling the vote, the county might have easily given a Republican majority of 2000. We are reliably informed that the Republican campaign committee promised state headquarters such a majority. The credit for holding down the majority under such adverse conditions is due largely to the efficient work of Campaign
Chairman, R. E. Lee Simmerman, Woman's Chairman, Miss Sue Yel-
ser, Secretary, McDowell A. Fogle, Stenographer, Miss Kennedy Collins and Finance Chairman, W. H.
Parks, assisted by loyal Democrats throughout the county.

THE WIDE TRACK WAGON IS HERE TO STAY

Don't let any one make you believe that you will be compelled to use an Auto-track Wagon.

It stands to reason that the marketing of farm products is of considerable more importance than traveling around in a pleasure car, and no fair-minded law making body is going to legislate in favor of joy-riding and against farm marketing problems.

The wide-track wagon has been the standard ever since wagons have been made, and it is the most satisfactory width for the user, as everyone knows, and IS HERE TO STAY.

We have a complete line of the two leading wagons made in the United States.

This Xmas let it be a Furniture Aristocrat

Get this Xmas guide- book to Period Furniture

Come in and let us give you a copy of "Edison and Music". Tells about the chief period designs—what they look like, what they stand for. Pithy descriptions. Beautiful illustrations. Just the information you want.

Let us show you what an exquisite thing a phonograph cabinet can be.

Every New Edison on our floor—no matter what its price—is encased in a genuine period cabinet.

Period Furniture is the world's most exquisite development of furniture. It originated in the 16th, 17th, and 18th Centuries. Europe was ruled by a Gorgeous Aristocracy. Fine living was the ideal of the day. An unparalleled race of artists, architects, and designers built palatial living-places for kings and nobles, and furnished them. The palaces of the nobility became treasure-houses of fine furniture. It was called the "Golden Age of Furniture."

So Mr. Edison had his designers go back into the manor houses of England, the chateaux of France and the castles of Italy. They adapted 17 designs from historic masterpieces. They preserved entire "the character and feeling of the best periods" in these superb phonograph cases for the modern American home.

No matter which Edison cabinet you choose, you get both the arts that make your house a cultured home—music perfectly RE-CREATED and furniture of purest period source. What finer gift for all the family?

MAKING WAR ON DISEASE MENACE

American Red Cross Announces Budget of $48,200,000 For Current Year.

NEW DISASTER RELIEF PLAN

Continuance of Heavy Work Abroad Deemed Necessary to Protect United States—$21,000,000 Less Than Last Year.

A program of relief and service toward which appropriations of $48,200,000 have been made has been outlined for the American Red Cross for the fiscal year, July 1, 1920, to July 1, 1921, according to official announcement by national headquarters of the organization at Washington. The figures for 1920-21 are $21,000,000 below those of 1919-20, in which $69,400,000 was spent.

Important among the items of the budget for the present year is the appropriation of $31,500,000 for relief in foreign lands, which includes $11,000,000 in purchased supplies on hand and not distributed.

Must Protect United States.
This will enable the American Red Cross to continue its humanitarian effort to aid stricken peoples to re-establish themselves, to fight the disease epidemics which threaten many countries and to efface largely the remaining traces of the blight left by the World War. It is regarded as social as well as physical sanitation on a large scale that will have a direct bearing on future conditions in America.

Central Europe, the chief sufferer from the conflict, today is facing another winter of famine, pestilence and ruin. Typhus decreased much during the summer months where last winter it had its greatest stronghold, but physicians who investigated the situation at the behest of the League of Red Cross Societies have given their unqualified opinion that this coming winter will see a recurrence on an unprecedented scale. The Red Cross feels it must continue preventive measures abroad to keep this and other deadly maladies from the United States.

Millions for Work at Home.
When the disease was sweeping Central Europe last winter the American Red Cross, with the aid of the governments of afflicted nations, undertook the fight against it. Hospitals were established wherever possible and food and clothing were distributed to the undernourished populations, who by reason of their undernourishment were prey to the epidemics. Where disorganization contributed last year to the great laradms made by the disease, by virtue of its knowledge of the disease and the presence of well established hospital centers, the American Red Cross this year will undertake the work with a new confidence.

Including the total of $11,000,000 in supplies left from the last fiscal year, the $31,500,000 is $21,000,000 less than the expenditures for 1919-20.
Appropriations for domestic activities total $16,700,000.
The largest item of this "home" budget is $7,800,000 for civilian relief work. This includes service and assistance for families of soldiers, sailors and marines, and work incidental to disaster. Of the total appropriation for civilian relief, $5,000,000 is held in reserve for the carrying out of actual disaster relief.

Reduced Overhead Expense.
The Red Cross invariably is the first thought of a community visited by calamity. With this in mind, it was determined by the Executive Committee in preparing the budget of 1919-20 to have a fixed reserve fund from which to draw in these instances.

For assistance to soldiers, sailors and marines in hospitals and in camps this year $1,900,000 has been set aside. Four million two hundred thousand dollars has been appropriated for improvement of health and prevention of disease throughout the United States during the current twelve months. The Red Cross is co-operating fully with the United States Health Service in this work and through its Junior Red Cross is doing much to spread among children the principles of sanitation. An appropriation of $1,000,000 has been made for developing the peace time program of the Red Cross by service to its chapters in all regions.

The appropriation of $48,200,000 is exclusive of the local expenditures of the 3,000 or more chapters.

Administration expenses this year will be $1,800,000. Last year they were $2,300,000.

HERBERT

By MILDRED WHITE.

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)
Jack Laidlaw brought his car to a stop in the driveway and sat frowning across the lawn to where his pretty young wife was entertaining Herbert Moore before a table set for two. This afternoon tea—musical sort of affair—was becoming altogether too frequent to suit Jack's taste. Herbert, in a white suit with his mandolin upon his knee presented a picture of pleasurable idleness which irritated the young husband beyond measure. What had got into Janet?

"Teu deur?" she asked sweetly.
"I have not," Jack replied with a contemptuous glance at the smiling Herbert,—"become addicted to that lady-like afternoon habit."

"No?" Janet said, "then what brings you out to our tea table?"

This was too much for even a patient husband. Jack glared into his wife's unmoved face, and sank—sulkily down on the grass.

"Sing 'Forgotten,' Herbert," she requested.

The fellow had a melting harytone, Jack secretly admitted, but the nerve of him trying it out tete-a-tete with Janet. And Janet listening with that wrapt look on her lovely face—Jack arose.

"Got an errand down town Janey," he said, "come along and ride with me." His wife flushed in embarrassment.

"Jack forgets his manners sometimes," she apologized to her guest. "It's merely thoughtlessness upon his part. Mr. Moore," she told her husband severely, "came to spend the afternoon, your errand can wait." Miss Peggy Wales entering the garden at this moment saved the situation.

"May I have some tea, Mrs. Laidlaw?" she entreated. "Of course I didn't really care about the tea, but I do want to hear Mr. Moore's music."

Jack drew a long breath. Peggy was in the field now, she had sighted this Moore Adonis, and started out to battle. When Peggy set herself to win a victory, her lexicon knew no such word as fail. Herbert would capitulate, and freed from his flattery, Janet would forget its pleasantness and to her old sweet comfortable self—so thought Jack. But his wife arising hastily at Peggy's unwelcome approach, had donned her sweater.

"So sorry," she murmured coldly. "Mr. Laidlaw, Mr. Moore and I were just leaving for a drive."

Jack gasped, his wife had never before been guilty of flagrant discourtesy. But Miss Peggy Wales showed no resentment, neither did she retreat.

"Couldn't you," she asked Janet wistfully, "leave Mr. Moore here with me?"

Peggy's stare was amused, and open to challenge. Jack turned away disgustedly. His wife, his idealized wife jealous—of another man.

"If you are so anxious to stay," she said evenly, "I will remain to play hostess."

"Thanks," Peggy cheerfully agreed. With a good natured shrug to any arrangement, the favored Herbert bent over his mandolin.

"Sing that song again—please?" whispered Peggy.

Janet quickly leaned forward.

"Not—'Forgotten'—Herbert."

There was reproach in her tone, at the suggestion. A dull red spread to the young man's hair.

"Don't you like his voice in that song?" questioned the too innocent Peggy.

"Then I will sing it myself, tune up, Mr. Moore. I'll put lots of thrills in the sentiment."

Jack stretched himself again on the grass. He was beginning to enjoy things in a bitter revengeful way.

Peggy jumped up at the end of her song.

"Come," she invited peremptorily, "walk with me across the park. Mr. Moore, I'm going home."

For an instant Herbert hesitated, then his hand touched formally the reluctant hand of Janet.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Laidlaw," he murmured—"lovely time."

The face of Jack's wife was the face of one stricken.

"The little cat," said Janet.

"I do not think," her husband answered fully, "that I understand you."

"Of course you don't," Janet waived, "and I promised Helen that no one should know of our little conspiracy. Now, I suppose I shall have to tell you. Helen was almost engaged to Herbert, when she had to go to her aunt's in Boston; Helen is crazy about him, and he seemed quite devoted to her. The only thing Helen was afraid of was that Peggy Wales would—would flirt with Herbert while she was away. And then—well, any one knows how it would end. So I promised Helen solemnly that I would keep Herbert entertained."

"Mrs. Laidlaw," interrupted a vibrant voice—"I left Herbert on a park bench and hurried back to tell you that we are engaged. It happened—the proposing I mean—all in a minute. You see, Herbert says that he has loved me terribly all along, but was always prevented by one person or another from getting even near enough to speak to me. So he took advantage of his very first opportunity. And—it isn't flirting with me either this time, so we're going to be married."

"Congratulations!" Jack cried heartily. "I am glad to hear it."

"I know you are," said Peggy.

Fordson

TRADE MARK

Farm Tractor

There is every reason in the world why every farmer should buy a Fordson Tractor, while there is not a single reason in the world why a farmer should not buy a Fordson Tractor.

In the claims we make for the Fordson Tractor as being the superior farm tractor there is nothing of boasting. Our claims are based upon demonstrated facts. In every sensible test that has been made (and we don't believe in any jockeying or technical tests) but in the real common sense work on the farm—the work the tractor was intended to accomplish—we say, in all such tests the Fordson has stood head and shoulders above all competing tractors. And this is best proven in the fact that while there are about three hundred thousand farm tractors in use in the United States today, and while tractors have been sold to farmers for twenty years, and while the Fordson tractor has only been on the market two years, more than one-third of all the tractors in use in the United States are Fordson tractors.

Now you can't upset a fact. You can't back away from an established truth, and there it is—out of three hundred thousand tractors, one hundred thousand are Fordsons, and there are probably some fifty different makes of tractors on the market. Just let your common sense consider these facts. "Flgs are not plucked from thistle bushes, nor plums from thorn trees."

The Fordson tractor has the necessary power. It is economical in operation. It is flexible in control and operation. It is simple in design, and it is sturdily built of the best iron and steel. It is the product of the genius of Henry Ford, and it wasn't placed on the market until Henry Ford had tested it, and tested it, and tested it, before he asked the farmers to buy it. It is no idle faith that in the Fordson tractor Henry Ford has given to mankind one of the greatest benefits which has ever come to civilized man.

Now we solicit every farmer to buy one or more Fordsons. Come in and see them. Come in and let us tell you more than we can in an advertisement. Let us demonstrate to you. Let us put it to every test that you ask. The tractor is just as necessary for the farmer as water is in the house. Come in! Look over the Fordson. Test it. Don't take any chances. Don't experiment. Supply your farm with the tractor of established value.

Is Not a "Fly-By-Night" Sale

The keenest business brains in the country have recognized that the time is at hand when the overinflation of wartime prices must end. We must "get back to earth"—back to normal conditions and prices for the necessities of life. We have seen the handwriting on the wall "have put our house in order" to meet changing conditions.
